SCENE IN BOYS' COURT.

The Boys' Court of Chicago is a place of uncommon interest. It is, so far as known, the only tribunal in the world where boys between the ages of 17 and 21 are arraigned for a hearing on charges, trivial and serious, whether for violations of city ordinances or for criminal offenses. The scenes daily enacted here are humorous, sad or tragic, according to the nature of the cases. On the occasion when this photograph was taken there was a cessation of the business of the court, it being a recess to permit of an interesting diversion to welcome back to the bench Judge Harry P. Dolan, who succeeded Judge Thomas F. Scully, the first presiding judge of the court, after an absence of several months. The figures in the rear of the judicial desk are Judges Scully and Dolan, those in the vicinity being members of the Public Defenders' Association of the Boys' Court and the Big Brothers' Association of the Boys' Court, both of which organizations are doing a splendid work in the interest of Chicago boys. There are also present a number of representatives of social agencies who have come to welcome Judge Dolan, and to encourage him in the good work he is doing. The occasion was made one of unusual interest and was featured by short addresses, an abundance of flowers and many congratulations. Judge Scully (who is familiarly known to the boys as "Big Brother Tom") was the principal speaker.
